

Our Goals!

As a leader, one of your main responsibilities at work is to get everyone on the same page when it comes to goals. While establishing and explaining the goals is important, providing the necessary tools is crucial, and offering empathy to the team is perhaps the most powerful tool to achieve collective success.

WHAT'S YOUR BACON?
MASTER HAPPINESS

My Goals:

The first step to using empathy in achieving goals is to start by showing some vulnerability yourself. Share your personal goals and dreams. Talk about what you're doing to achieve them, and explain why these goals matter to you. By doing this, you are modeling the behavior you expect from your team. You are showing them that it's okay to have dreams and to share them with others.

Your Goals:

Next, ask your employees to express their dreams and personal goals as well as what they are doing to achieve them. Ask them why these goals are important to them. By doing so, you are opening a dialogue and showing that you care about them as individuals. You are also helping them connect their personal goals with the company's goals.

Our Goals:

Once you have established personal connections with your employees, it's time to discuss the company's goals. Explain how achieving your goals and helping the employee achieve their goals will lead towards working together to achieve the company's goals. This is where you can show them how their individual contributions are connected to the growth and success of the whole company.